

Lesson 1. Career paths - answers

Lexis: tasks 4-7 | Reading: tasks 8-9 | Listening: task 10 | Grammar: tasks 11-12 | Speaking: tasks 1, 3, 9, 12

Task 4. Career phrases - matching

Phrase	Answer	Meaning
1. career move	c	an action you take to progress in your career
2. career break	d	a period of time away from your job, for example, to look after your children
3. career plan	b	ideas you have for your future career
4. career opportunities	a	chances to start/improve your career
5. career path	f	the direction your working life takes
6. career ladder	e	a series of levels or steps in your working life

Task 5. Verbs: climb, decide, have, make, offer, take

- Employees in large multinationals have excellent career opportunities if they are willing to travel. (дано)
- Some people take a career break to do something adventurous like sailing round the world or going trekking in India.
- One way to make a career move is to join a small but rapidly growing company.
- Certain companies offer career opportunities to the long-term unemployed or to people without formal qualifications.
- Ambitious people often decide on a career plan while they are still at university.
- In some industries, it can take a long time to climb the career ladder.

Task 6. Cross out the odd noun

Verb	Cross out	Why / correct collocation
1. make	a training course	you do / take / go on a training course; make a fortune / progress / a living
2. get	progress	you make progress; get a promotion / a bonus / fired / the sack
3. earn	a part-time job	you have / do / get a part-time job; earn commission / money / 40,000 per year
4. do	a mistake	you make a mistake; do part-time work / a nine-to-five job / your best
5. take	a pension	you get / receive / draw a pension; take an opportunity / time off / early retirement

6. work	an office job	you have / do an office job; work flexitime / anti-social hours / overtime
---------	----------------------	---

Task 7. Word partnerships in the right form

- In banking, you can make a fortune with the big bonuses and retire at 35.
- When you work flexitime, you can arrange your own schedule, so this is very convenient when you have children.
- People who work in sales often have the opportunity to earn commission on top of a basic salary.
- Luke is ambitious and does not want to be a sales assistant all his life. In fact, he hopes to get a promotion and become Assistant Manager very soon.
- Many students do part-time work when they are at university because it fits in with their studies.
- Goran is 59, but he does not want to take early retirement. In fact, he is taking on more work!

Reading. Task 8 (Text A)

Scanning questions

- 70 per cent - seven in 10 employers now research candidates online (Microsoft survey of HR managers at the top 100 companies in the UK, the US, Germany and France).
- Facebook and Twitter. Careerbuilder.co.uk is also mentioned, but it is an online recruitment network, not a social-networking site.
- Peter Cullen works for Microsoft; Farhan Yasin works for Careerbuilder.co.uk, the online recruitment network.

The best headline

b) Facebook profile "could damage job prospects" - the whole article is about online profiles harming (or helping) your chances of being hired. Option (a) covers only one detail from the last paragraph, and ambition (c) is not discussed at all.

Reading. Task 9 (discussion)

1. How can social-networking sites make or break your career?

They can make it: a profile is a way of promoting your personal brand across the Internet and of making connections with job opportunities. As Peter Cullen puts it, your online reputation is something to be proactively managed, and a strong professional image online can help you land your dream job. Recruiters search for candidates on these sites, so a well-kept profile works as an extra CV that is available 24/7.

They can break it: 70 per cent of employers admit rejecting a candidate because of their online behaviour, and 28 per cent have fired staff for content found on a social-networking profile. Typical faux pas are drunken photographs, bad language and messages complaining about work or about colleagues.

2. What else could break your career?

Lying on your CV, missing deadlines, leaking confidential information, a bad relationship with your line manager, refusing to learn new skills, unprofessional behaviour with clients, and burning bridges when you leave a company.

What you should not do on your social-networking pages

- Do not post drunken or party photographs, and untag yourself from those posted by friends.
- Do not complain about your job, your boss, your colleagues or your customers.
- Do not use bad language or post offensive, discriminatory or aggressive comments.
- Do not share confidential information about your company, its clients or its projects.
- Do not contradict your CV: your dates, job titles and qualifications must match.
- Do not post that you are ill and then upload holiday pictures on the same day.
- Do not leave everything public - check your privacy settings regularly.
- Do not use an unprofessional user name or e-mail address on a job-related site.
- Do not accept every friend request without thinking about who can see your posts.
- Do not get involved in political or religious arguments in public threads.

Listening. Task 10

Задание не решено: нужен аудиофайл или транскрипт. Пришли запись (или текст скрипта / варианты ответов)
- допишу этот раздел и пересоберу PDF.

Grammar. Task 11 A. Rearranged questions

#	Question	Function
1	Can I get you a drink?	b - making an offer
2	Could I confirm your e-mail address?	a - making a request
3	Can you use spreadsheets?	c - asking about ability
4	Can you speak any other languages?	c - asking about ability
5	Could you tell us more about your present job?	a - making a request
6	Could you tell me your current salary?	a - making a request
7	Would you let us know your decision as soon as possible?	a - making a request
8	When can you start?	c - asking about ability (availability)
9	Would you like some more tea?	b - making an offer

Grammar. Task 11 B. Questions and answers

Question	Answer	Text of the answer
1. Can I get you a drink?	d	Thank you. A cup of tea, please.
2. Could I confirm your e-mail address?	e	The address is correct, but I've got a new mobile number.
3. Can you use spreadsheets?	b	Not very well, but I'm doing a course next week.

4. Can you speak any other languages?	h	Yes, I can speak Korean and Japanese.
5. Could you tell us more about your present job?	g	Well, I'm currently supervising an HR project.
6. Could you tell me your current salary?	a	It's 60,000 euros a year.
7. Would you let us know your decision as soon as possible?	c	I can let you know next week.
8. When can you start?	i	My notice period is two months.
9. Would you like some more tea?	f	I'd love some. Thank you.

Task 12. Role play: job interview (sample dialogue)

Позиция: Junior Data Analyst. А - интервьюер, В - кандидат. Реплики А закрывают все пункты задания.

A: Good morning, thank you for coming. Can I get you a tea or a coffee?

B: Good morning. A coffee would be lovely, thank you.

A: Here you are. So, to start with, could you tell me a little about yourself?

B: Of course. I'm a fourth-year student of applied mathematics and I've been doing part-time work as a reporting assistant for about a year. I build weekly sales dashboards, so this position looks like a natural next step on my career path.

A: Can you speak any languages apart from Russian?

B: Yes, I can. I speak English at an upper-intermediate level and I can read technical German, though I don't speak it fluently.

A: Can you use Excel, PowerPoint or Publisher?

B: I use Excel every day - pivot tables, VLOOKUP and basic macros. I'm confident with PowerPoint as well. I've never worked with Publisher, but I'm sure I can learn it quickly.

A: And what about programming languages?

B: I write SQL and Python. I use pandas for data cleaning and I've done a couple of small projects with Power BI.

A: Can you drive?

B: Yes, I have a category B licence, but I don't have a car at the moment.

A: Could you give me the best number to contact you on tomorrow?

B: Certainly. It's 8-916-204-77-31.

A: Sorry, could you repeat that, please?

B: Of course - 8-916-204-77-31. It's my mobile, and it's on all day.

A: Thank you. Would you like to work abroad?

B: Yes, I'd be happy to. I'd prefer short business trips at first, but I'd definitely consider a longer placement later - I think it's a good career move.

A: Are there any hours you wouldn't be able to work?

B: I can't work before 2 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays because of my classes, and I'd rather not work anti-social hours on a regular basis. Overtime at the end of the month is not a problem.

A: That's very helpful. Would you let us know your decision by Friday if we make you an offer?

B: Yes, of course. Thank you for your time.

A: Would you like some more coffee before you go?

B: No, thank you. I'm fine.

Speaking. Tasks 1 and 3 (pages 4-5)

Тексты заданий 1 и 3 не прислали - ниже готовые ответы на вопросы про job-related social-networking sites (стр. 6), которые идут перед чтением. Пришли формулировки 1 и 3 - допишу.

What job-related social-networking sites do you know and use? Why?

The best-known professional network is LinkedIn, which works as an online CV: you list your education, your work experience and your skills, and recruiters contact you directly. In Russia people mostly use hh.ru and Habr Career for IT jobs, and a lot of vacancies are now posted in Telegram channels. Developers also treat GitHub as a portfolio, because employers can see the real code you write.

I use them for three reasons. First, to look for career opportunities: many jobs are never advertised anywhere else. Second, to keep an eye on the market - what skills companies ask for and what salary range is realistic. Third, to make connections: former colleagues and classmates often recommend you when a vacancy comes up, and a recommendation works far better than a cold application. I try to keep the profile professional, because, as the article says, seven in ten employers check candidates online before they invite them for an interview.